The problem of path prediction from CDR data, as described above, is particularly challenging with relation to the various data limitations inherent in using the data.